

WEBSITES

www.democrats.org and www.rnc.org: The websites of these two national committees include a good deal of information about candidates, party platforms, and similar matters. Each campaign maintains its own website during an election year.

www.fec.gov: The Federal Election Commission maintains up-to-date records of all candidate fund-raising and spending during the general-election phase of the electoral process, including soft-money expenditures.

www.cq.com and http://cnn.com/allpolitics: These sites, mentioned in chapter 6, are also excellent for getting information on the presidential election. So too are the media websites listed in chapter 10.